

2009-10 SPEECH, THEATRE, AND DEBATE BOOKLETS FOR SALE

The following booklets, published by the National Federation of State High School Associations can be ordered from the SDHSAA office in Pierre. The order form can be found under the “Forms-Speech” listing on the “Speech” portion of the SDHSAA web site. These publications are published to assist coaches and high school speakers in understanding the mechanics of the various activities along with improving coaching and speaking skills.

FORENSIC QUARTERLY

NEW FORENSIC QUARTERLY (complete 4 issue set)

The Forensic Quarterly, an annual publication in four issues, remains one of the most credible and valuable resources for CX policy debaters and coaches across the country. Used by beginners and experienced debaters, it provides a basis for individual research and a springboard for critical analysis of the area selected each year for high school debate. -- 4 issue set (one of each issue) ... $27.00 plus postage.

OR SINGLE ISSUES

NEW Forensic Quarterly Number 1

Written by Rich Edwards of Baylor University, this issue provides background on the "Poverty" debate topic. It offers an extensive definition-of-terms section developed on the basis of participation in the annual Topic Selection Meeting and presents a projected case list. -- $6.75 plus postage.

NEW Forensic Quarterly Number 2

This issue contains an extensive annotated bibliography on the "Poverty" topic including Internet sources. Compiled by Rich Edwards of Baylor University, it provides a starting point for student research on the debate topic, focusing on important issues to be explored. -- $6.75 plus postage.

NEW Forensic Quarterly Number 3

Written by Jeff Jarman at Wichita State University, this issue provides affirmative case analysis on the "Poverty" debate topic. The analysis provides a variety of perspectives for developing affirmative cases on the topic. -- $6.75 plus postage.

NEW Forensic Quarterly Number 4

Written by Rich Edwards of Baylor University, this issue discusses negative strategy on the "Poverty" debate topic. The analysis provides alternative methods for developing negative positions on the topic. -- $6.75 plus postage.

BOOKLETS

“A Glossary Of Terms For Policy Debate”

This mini-dictionary for debaters and coaches defines many terms commonly used in policy debate, and is frequently found in novice debaters' tubs and briefcases. Rich Edwards offers an excellent collection of commonly used terms with clearly written definitions and explanations. -- $3.24 each plus postage.

“An Introduction To Debate” (2001)

Designed for beginning debaters, this material by summarizes the essential elements of policy team debate and Lincoln-Douglas debate. It systematically introduces the reader to basic debate theory and practice. Written by Walter Ulrich and significantly revised by Rich Edwards, this booklet explains the format and essential components of each type of debate. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Answering Plan Attacks And Disadvantages”

Be prepared to do battle with the negative! Generic plan attacks are now common in debate, and affirmative debaters must respond effectively and efficiently to such attacks. Dale Herbeck and John Katsulas offer specific advice on how to deal with generic arguments in a debate. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Coaching (Policy) Debate”

“How do I learn to coach policy debate?” An outstanding teacher and coach of debate, Larry Smith, has collected ideas from his 28 years of successful coaching. The booklet teaches debate in a clear and easy-to-understand manner and is a must for the beginning CX debate coach. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Coaching Interpretation Events”

This handbook for beginning coaches of interpretation events is designed for practical and immediate use. Author and coach Evelyn Rodriguez provides specific information on structuring and organizing a competitive program and detailed suggestions for coaching and rehearsing interpretation events. Some information provided applies to preparing students for any competitive event -- $3.25 plus postage.

“Common Debate Fallacies”

“What is wrong with that argument?” In this booklet, Walter Ulrich analyzes several major fallacies which appear frequently in contemporary debate and suggests how to attack fallacious arguments. A great resource for developing critical thinking skills - for debaters or any student. --$3.25 each plus postage.

"Creating An Effective Original Oration" (1999)

This 1999 edition of Collette Mikesell Winfield's perspective on original oratory is a must for coaches and competitors. Developed from her extensive experience with this challenging event, this booklet provides insight into researching, creating and delivering a "winning" original oration. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Debate Tournament Administration”

“I am hosting a debate tournament! What do I do?” Careful planning and organization makes it a great experience – for you and those participating. Robert Branham gives specific, step-by-step instructions to tournament directors. Tournament management without a computer program - from invitations to tabulations - is covered. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Developing And Defending Disadvantages”

“And what are the problems with the affirmative proposal?” Author Walter Ulrich provides a comprehensive overview of selecting, presenting and defending disadvantages. He also discusses dealing with affirmative responses and strategic choices for the negative. --$3.25 each plus postage.

“Developing And Defending The Negative Position”

“Let’s look at this from another point of view.” Diana Carlin and Walter Ulrich present a systematic approach to creating a coherent negative position that can be adopted and modified throughout the debate season in response to affirmative cases. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Extemporaneous Speaking”

One of the oldest and most popular and challenging forensic contests is extemporaneous speaking. Jack Kay and Roger Aden assist students and coaches in preparing for this public speaking event. Research, speaking style, organization and performance evaluation are addressed. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Guidelines For The Debate Judge”

Walter Ulrich provides essential information about the debate process and a great tool for training new judges. Characteristics of good debate judges are provided, as well as instructions on how to reach a decision as to who won the debate. Attention is given to communicating the decision via a debate ballot. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Humor In Competitive Speaking Events

This booklet by Timothy Borchers is designed to identify ways humor can be used effectively in forensic competition. It illustrates how humor can be a valid component of speaking events and provides specific recommendations for coaches and students who wish to use humor. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Judging Oral Interpretation Events”

Effective evaluation of oral interpretation events requires a unique set of skills, and Robert Littlefield offers guidance to practicing and prospective contest judges. He introduces characteristics that make an effective judge, techniques for determining winners and appropriate methods for communicating the basis for a decision. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Lincoln-Douglas Debate: The Basics Of Value Argumentation”

Experienced debate coach Stan Lewis provides an easy-to-understand introduction to Lincoln-Douglas debate. The nature of values and their role in L-D debate is explained, as well as speaking responsibilities and the structure of both affirmative and negative cases. -- $3.25 plus postage.

“Oral Interpretation: Preparing And Performing Literature”

Sid Trice shares insights into choosing, cutting, analyzing, rehearsing and performing prose, poetry and humorous or dramatic selections. He provides useful guidelines and outlines the process of effective interpretation and the art of bringing literature to life through performance. - - $3.25 plus postage.

“Paradigms In Debate” (Revised – 2001)

Dale Herbeck and John Katsulas discuss dominant paradigms in debate: stock issues, policy making, hypothesis testing, the debate judge and critiques. Practical advice on how to strategically argue paradigms. - - $3.25 plus postage.

“Parliamentary Debate”

Parliamentary debate is growing rapidly in high school forensics. Robert Branham and John Meany explain the formats and procedures of parliamentary debate, which is great fun for classes, public debates and competitive tournaments. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Preparing And Performing A One-Act Play” (2008)

Preparation and performance of a one-act play presents a variety of unique problems for directors. This booklet by Mary Kate Alkire provides a practical approach to the process and assists directors in their pursuit of a successful and educational experience for their student actors. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Preparing For Participation In Student Congress”

This booklet, prepared by Bill Hicks and Rich Edwards, introduces students and coaches to essential elements of the Student Congress process such as writing bills, understanding basic parliamentary procedures and speaking with persuasive effect in this legislative setting -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“Public Forum Debate: An Introduction

This booklet, written by Dr. Kevin Minch, aims to instruct both coaches and competitors how to prepare for and compete in the Public Forum Debate event. It contains a detailed discussion of the event’s structure, style and rules, as well as extensive advice for preparation and teaching strategies for coaches.--$3.25 each plus postage.

“Rebuttals And Extensions In Debate”

One of the most difficult debate skills to master is the tough job of answering your opponents attacks and rebuilding your arguments. Walter Ulrich offers step-by-step instruction on preparing for rebuttals, determining which issues to extend, and structuring effective extensions in rebuttal speeches. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Socrates In The Forum: The Role Of Philosophy In Lincoln-Douglas Debate”

Effective participation in Lincoln-Douglas Debate requires a working knowledge of key philosophical ideas. This booklet, written by Robert M. Baird, (Chair of the Department of Philosophy at Baylor University), covers contemporary issues and related philosophies and value systems. The author points debaters to key books and journal articles which more fully outline the value systems developed. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

"Tests Of Evidence"

Since evidence is the raw material for constructing arguments, debaters must understand how to critically assess evidence in order to collect the best during research and evaluate evidence used by opponents. Dale Herbeck describes a series of tests that can be used to evaluate statistical evidence and testimonial evidence and evidence collected on the Internet. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

“The Debate Flowsheet”

“How do I keep up with what’s being argued in a debate round?” Robert Branham and updated by Kevin Minch and Kristopher Stroup, explains the mechanics of how to take notes - and what to take notes on- in an organized and efficient way. A great resource for beginning debaters, coaches and judges. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“The Values Of Speech, Debate And Theatre Activities: Making The Case For Forensics” (2006)

This publication by Kevin Minch will be helpful to anyone in need of information to assist in advocacy efforts for speech programs and activities. He has incorporated many of the best portions of the previous booklet, “The Value of Forensics”, and added new information that will help you make the case for your forensics program. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Topicality: Theory And Practice” (2006)

This publication by Rich Edwards combines two previous booklets on topicality in debate into one concise booklet. It includes new information while keeping the best components of the previous topicality booklets. It provides standards for evaluating topicality, illustrates the process of researching and structuring topicality briefs and suggests resources. It is a “must read” for all debaters, regardless of skill level. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Understanding The Counterplan”

To clarify what can be done by negative teams - and what affirmative teams can do to prepare for and attack counterplans - Walter Ulrich has prepared an understandable explanation of this complex element of policy debate. Coaches, debaters and judges can sharpen their skills and understanding through reading and discussing this material. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

“Values In Policy Debate” (2002)

This booklet by John Fritch explores the role of values in personal and public decision-making and in policy debate. After discussing definitions and functions of values, the author provides a variety of specific examples for effective use of value arguments in policy debate. - - $3.25 each plus postage.

"Winning Strategies For Writing The Affirmative Case"

Essential to a good round of debate is a well organized affirmative case. Dale Herbeck and John Katsulas have written an updated approach to developing and presenting an affirmative case, reflecting contemporary theory and practice. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

"Winning Ways In Mock Trial"

Mock trial combines an exciting application of fundamental debate and public-speaking skills with an exploration of the "real world" justice system. Donna Ross has drawn on her extensive experience in coaching the activity to provide descriptions of the elements of Mock Trial and comprehensive explanations of procedures, along with specific strategies for successful participation. -- $3.25 each plus postage.

! SALE - THE FOLLOWING BOOKLETS ARE OUT OF PRINT

- Supply is limited - Special Prices

“A Bibliography On Debate Theory And Individual Events” (Volume I)

Jack Kay and Walter Ulrich have compiled an annotated bibliography on debate theory which also includes individual events. Coaches, speakers and debaters will find materials covering a broad range of forensics issues - - $1.00 each plus postage.

“A Bibliography On Debate Theory And Individuals Events” (Volume II)

Written by Arnie Madsen, this extensive, annotated bibliography provides a broad range of valuable readings which go beyond the information found in introductory pamphlets of basic debate text. It is intended as a companion volume to the bibliography developed by Jack Kay and Walter Ulrich. -- $1.00 each plus postage.

“An Introduction To Debate” (1986)

Designed for beginning debaters, this material by summarizes the essential elements of policy team debate and Lincoln-Douglas debate. It systematically introduces the reader to basic debate theory and practice. Written by Walter Ulrich, this booklet explains the format and essential components of each type of debate. - - $1.00 each plus postage.

“Answering Generic Plan Attacks”

Be prepared to do battle with the negative! Generic plan attacks are now common in debate, and affirmative debaters must respond effectively and efficiently to such attacks. This booklet offers advice on how to deal with generic arguments in a debate. - - $1.00 each plus postage.

“Paradigms In Debate” (1988)

Dale Herbeck and John Katsulas discuss dominant paradigms in debate: stock issues, policy making, hypothesis testing, the debate judge and critiques. Practical advise on how to strategically argue paradigms. - - $3.25 plus postage.

“Preparing To Debate Topicality”

This booklet provides guidelines to follow in preparing for topicality debates. Rich Edwards illustrates the process of researching and structuring topicality briefs, and suggests numerous resources for further topicality research and field contextual definitions. -- $1.00 each plus postage.

“Selecting And Attending A Forensic Institute”

Written for students, coaches and parents, this booklet suggests a process for selecting a summer forensics institute. Drawing on his extensive background with summer institutes, Walter Ulrich also offers solid advice on how to maximize one's institute experience. -- $1.00 each plus postage.

“Style In Debate”

Jack Kay and Ruth Kay, show debaters how to make delivery and persuasion a greater part of the debate experience. - - $1.00 each plus postage.

“The Role Of Values In Policy Debate”

This booklet by Diana Prentice and Jack Kay re-examines the role of values in policy debate. It explores the nature of values as they commonly appear in policy arguments and demonstrates that values are fundamental in most policy controversies. The authors provide a number of methods for debaters to more effectively incorporate value argument in their debating. - - $1.00 each plus postage.